ESSEX

Agricultural Annual Fair, Andover and North Andover have a large place in the Excellent Exhibition.

One of the most successful exhibitions the Essex County Agricultural Society has had in its history was the one held in Lawrence on Tuesday and Wednesday of this week. The weather was good, and there was a large attendance each day. Andover sent large delegations and the electric cars had to run every fifteen minutes to accommodate them. The exhibition of cattle, poultry, and agricultural implements at the circus grounds, though not quite as large as has been seen, was very good, while the show in City Hall was certainly excellent.

The annual meeting of the Society was held Tuesday morning, President Benj. F. Ware in the chair. On the first ballot for president, Mr. Ware had the largest number of votes, but he arose and having extended his thanks to the Society for its support during his sixteen years of service as president, declined to serve again, and Francis H. Appleton of Peabody was unanimously elected. Four vice-presidents were elected as follows: J. J. Gregory, Marblehead; James P. King, Peabody; O. S. Butler, Georgetown; Aaron Low, Essex. John W. Danforth of Lynnfield was re-elected Secretary.

By the expedient working of the committee of arrangements in union with the various sub-committees, the interior was open to public inspection early in the afternoon of Tuesday, and a more attractive exhibit of the manufacturing industries, agricultural products, works of art in its several departments could hardly have been desired, and has never been surpassed in the history of the Society.

A novel feature upon which the eyes of every visitor was fixed upon entering the hall was the oriental page of the

THE EASTERN MILL. A unique structure built upon a base containing fancy black lawns, asters, chalias, henrietta cloth, and a special display of contract work including worsted coatings and coat linings. The second tier contained plain and fancy mohairs, fancy prints, fancy chalias, yarn dyed goods, and Bedford corded prints and 48 shades of piece dyed goods. Above these were arranged printed asters, yarn dyed goods, and on the corners printed cloths, cretons and fancy chamberly goods were also noticed. The inside figure, an inverted cone, was of printed chalias. Encircling the base of the spire of white and red cashmere were several colored delaines. Mr. Thomas Smith was the department exhibitor, and Messrs. Taylor and Fitzgerald were the decorators. The Society diplomas was conferred upon this exhibit.

Next in order was the representation of the

THE EVERETT MILL. The representation was a Mosque, or bell tower supported by hexagonal columns. Outing cloths, light fancy suitings, and cotton goods were arranged with such perfect colorature that Mr. George W. Martin has reason to be proud of his decorative genius. Mr. Fred E. Dean represented this corporation as exhibitor. This exhibit also received a Society diploma.

THE FEMBERTON MILL. Was represented by Mr. Daniels, and although no extraordinary effort was made at display, yet it was a substantial representation of the class of goods manufactured by this well known corporation, and received honorable mention by the Society.

THE ARLINGTON MILL. Made a very extensive exhibit, and about four hundred bales of cloth were used in the construction of a colossal pyramid of cashmeres, tennis goods, checks, fancy shirtings, and fine mohair goods. Resting on the apex of the structure was an open parti-colored fan, with the words "Arlington Mills" in shaded letters. The design was very unique, and the whole was a symphony of blended color, very striking in effect. Mr. Ernest Demars was the decorator. Messrs. D. W. Babcock and Thomas Andrews were in charge.

PRIVATE EXHIBITION. Thornton Bros., the celebrated floral decorators and horticulturalists, received unstinted praise from the throng of spectators, who looked with admiration upon the finest display of tropical plants to be found in the country. While the many set designs are, as usual, very pretty, yet the most original and most engaging thing of the entire exhibition was the floral plow of elegant asters. Upon the beam of white asters appears the name (Continued on second page.)

Essex Agricultural Fair.

of "Thornton Bros." in blue, immortalized. The blade was of lavender, and the white handles tipped with red aster, and the knife was also of shaded red aster.

CRAIGHEAD & KINTZ.

This well-known manufacturing concern had a pretty display of bronze articles in the Northwest corner.

Among the works of decorative art, the private contribution of hand painted china by Mrs. Wm. H. Gile was especially noticeable, and a decided addition to the art department. Among the other prominent exhibitors were H. M. Whitney & Co., whose pharmaceutical establishment was well represented; A. W. Stearns' variety of brads, 35 different qualities; Miss Dora F. Hall, workmanship in human hair goods, to whom diplomas were granted.

IN THE BALCONY.

In the balcony was a pretty display of afghans and counterpanes, a noticeable sample of the former being one crocheted by Mrs. Saphronia Gray of this town, who is 88 years old. The Enterprise Portrait Company, Bee Hive Flier and Spindle works, McDonald and Hanford of North Andover, horse clothing, and the Oulton Manufacturing Co. of Haverhill, sofa beds, made good displays here, while one end was reserved for displaying flowers, shrubs, and plants.

HON. GEORGE BAILEY LORING.

Distinguished as a Statesman, Orator, and Man of Letters.

That the recent illness of Dr. George B. Loring had ended in death, at his home in Salem, Sunday, Sept. 13, was intelligence entirely unexpected and a fact, upon first report, hard to be realized. While the greater sorrow rested heavily upon the immediate family, yet the loss is one of moment to the nation and the state, on account of efficient public service, and no less a source of particular regret to our town, the place of his birth.

His father, Rev. Bailey Loring the celebrated divine, was the son of William and Althea (Alden) Loring of Duxbury, born Dec. 10, 1786. Bailey Loring's mother being a direct descendant of the pilgrim settler, John Alden. Dr. Loring's father completed a pastorate of 40 years over the North Parish Church at the Centre, Feb. 27, 1830, and was an honored resident of the community for over half a century. His mother, a lady of rare talent, was Miss Sally Pickman Osgood, daughter of Gayton P. Osgood, Esq., of North Andover, who in a famous election contest, requiring seventeen appeals to the ballot box, defeated Caleb Cushing for Congress.

Dr. Loring's early education was gained from the public schools and the then celebrated Franklin Academy, of his native town. In 1838 he was graduated from Harvard College; James Russell Lowell, Wm. W. Story, Gen. Charles Devens, and others being among his associate classmates. He later took the degree of M.D. at Harvard after studying with Dr. Joseph Kittredge of North Andover and Dr. O. W. Holmes of Boston. After practicing for a year in his native town, he became Surgeon General of the U. S. Marine Hospital at Chelsea, Surgeon of the 7th Mass. Regiment. In 1849 he was appointed Commissioner to revise the U. S. Maritime Hospital service. In 1851 he made his home at Salem, and was Postmaster of the city from 1853 to 1857.

Mr. Loring's political career began early and he was first inclined to Democratic principles. In 1862 he supported Gen. Devens against Gov. Andrews; two years later, however, he renounced all allegiance to the party of his adoption and refusing all overtures, became an ardent supporter of Abraham Lincoln. In 1872 he was elected to the State Senate, and for several years in succession its presidency was conferred upon him wholly unsought. In 1876 he was elected to Congress and also subsequently was honored with a re-election. President Garfield appointed him Commissioner of Agriculture in 1881, a position which he retained until 1885. His last appearance in public life was as minister to Portugal, an appointment received from President Harrison in 1889, but which he resigned in 1890, desiring to be nearer his home.

Probably no man was more familiar with the science of agriculture than Mr. Loring; he was a well known writer upon all matters concerning this subject and was an unquestioned authority. He was a man of marked personal appearance, of commanding presence, and courteous in manner.

Dr. Loring was strongly attached to North Andover, and was a frequent visitor here in the summer. On the occasion of the dedicatory exercises of the Johnson High School of that town he gave the oration, and at the time of the Osgood gathering at Osgood Hall, June 6, 1883, he also delivered a memorable oration. At the time of the institution of Cochichewick Lodge, he addressed the assembly. In any republican convention of any note, Mr. Loring always figured as one of the foremost men, and in the literary field whatever bore his signature was recognized as a work of excellence.

Dr. Loring was married twice, first to Mary Tappan, daughter of Dr. Thomas and Sophia (Palmer) Pickman, Nov. 3, 1851, of Salem, and who died Dec. 30, 1862, leaving one daughter, Miss Sally Pickman Loring. His second wife was Mrs. Annie Hildreth, daughter of Hon. Isaac S. Smith, of New York, whom he married June 10, 1880, a descendant of Gen. Israel Putnam of Revolutionary fame. Mr. Geo. B. Loring of this town is a nephew of deceased. Dr. Loring and family were very popular in Washington society, and he was well known in Masonic circles, having reached the 32d degree.

Private services were held at 1.30 o'clock Thursday afternoon, Sept. 17, at the manor on Pickman farm, by Rev. E. B. Wilson who also conducted public services at the North Unitarian Church, Salem, at 3 o'clock, in the presence of a large congregation of respectful people. The form rested in a casket of solid, unpolished natural oak with handles of dark bronze, and unornamented save by a plain plate of heavy silver inscribed: "R.I.P. George Bailey Loring, Born, Nov. 8, 1817, Died Sept. 13, 1891."

The bearers were Hon. Moses T. Stevens, Hon. John D. Long, Hon.

Wm. Crapo, Hon. Daniel Needham, Hon. William Cogswell, Hon. William C. Endicott, Gen. Samuel C. Lawrence, Col. Frank Dalton. The funeral was in charge of Winslow Lewis Commandery K.T. The body of the statesman reposes in Harmony Grove Cemetery.

Roger and the Electric.

That at my window, like all the other people on the Square on Saturday night and Sunday watching the people playing with their new toy. How the conductor, the small boy, the "passenger" all elated and puffed themselves proudly as the coach swept down the hill from the square to the "Compd." I devoted myself, to the exclusion of all other interests on Sunday morning, to noting the departures and arrivals. It has been said that one of the family of a noted professor was the first to leap from the earliest car and a budding preacher from the Seminary the first to get on. Anyway, I only watched the beaming faces of the Lawrence fathers with babes in arms, the mother's at the rear with the preternatural two year olds, and the engaged young couples (everybody was young then) came from Lawrence, who wandered off in search of what I heard one party inquiring for—"the country." If you, my worthy opponent of the Sunday car, had to live in Lawrence yourself, you, too, would hasten to the high hills of Andover to get a lift above that peculiar mixture they call air over there. I didn't grudge them one breath, for I recall the long years back when as a child of one of the old residents, I wandered up and down the river farm lands and over the West Andover woods with my father and the rest on Sunday afternoons. Every thing green has been shaved off the flat plain where we used to gather wild flowers, and fireweed, thistles, and pigweed only are left for the Lawrence babies. So far as I noticed, there was no disorder during the day; Lawrence was on its good behavior.

Just about the time for the last car on Sunday night I heard a chuckle that sounded familiar, and to my amazement saw that our old friend Roger was back again. He had started for the first time up the station stairs, and was looking down at his shoulder. "When did you come? Where is Charlie? Where have you been this year back?" Well it was a long story in his sign language, but I gathered that they had been on a great journey. They had watched and worried over the Indian rebellion and since then had been camping with Charlie's father, so Roger, to give with him over the death of the old mother at the hands of drunk lumbermen—poor Charlie's mother, he had been so tragically in his own circle. What a curse run is! All the care of the kind and busy schemer who now owns Jo's hunting grounds cannot comfort the poor old man, and Charlie could not leave him again. Roger's mind was out of the window most of the time, and his story was interrupted by the arrival of the last car. I found he could see as well as I could, but was otherwise cut off from human beings. I had to explain the remarks, songs, thoughts and plans of everybody who came and went, and I don't think a baby or grown escaped his notice on Sunday, and I was worn out with his questions. He remarked that the crowd who went back to Lawrence Sunday night were a great improvement on the Andover contingent in the latest cars of the night before, whom he was afraid had been near firewater. "That is nothing new, Roger. We always get that racket when they come on the steam cars at that hour, but the long hill from the station seems to take the conceit out of their hilarity and when they get to the square it is only spasmodic. Lawrence don't help our people much. Yes, Roger, our quiet country Sunday preaches to these city dwellers. The clean streets, green fields, noble landscape and sweet pine woods make them want better and cleaner homes when they get back, and they will save up money to get away from the gutter odor and get a little home somewhere on our side of the line. They will help us pay taxes, and all we have got to do is to stick to our wholesome country ways and let them enjoy all we have to give."

Roger began to wonder how many came over to Andover Sunday for the first time; but I heard the last car just then and told him plainly I was a very busy person, and if he had set himself up for my familiar spirit still he must not hinder me again. "The cars might come; the cars might go—but work went on forever." So he, too, went and I had rest.

Communication.

Mr. Editor: I am moved to speak of two things in connection with these fascinating conveniences, the electric cars, and their management. The first relates to that necessary fence separating the roadway and sidewalk on the Main Street railroad bridge. The cars run so close that it is an impossibility to stand on the side steps when passing this point. In other places where electric lines are operated three feet leeway must be allowed between the cars and anything immovable between the tracks.

The next refers to the treatment of horses frightened by the cars. The motor man should stop his car immediately on discovering that he is responsible for the trouble, and the conductor should, when necessary, as is often the case, take the animal by the head and use every effort to quiet it. This the custom in larger towns than Andover, and works nicely. The horses will soon become accustomed to the innovation, but a little care should be used for a time. A horse was badly frightened last Saturday night, and a party of half-drunken hoodlums in the rear of the car did their best to make the matter worse with senseless yelling, but the conductor made no attempt to stop their noise or to assist in any way. Should he not have done so?

People's Course.

The People's Course of lectures and entertainments this year should again draw large audiences, for without doubt it is the best and most expensive course yet presented, as a perusal of the circulars will show.

The prices of tickets and all arrangements connected with their sale will be precisely the same as last year, viz:

The centre and right side of the hall will be reserved back to and including settee N, the price for tickets being one dollar. Tickets admitting to all other parts of the hall will be seventy-five cents, and if desired at the time of purchase, reserved seats will be given on those tickets in the centre and right side back of settee N, same as in previous years.

Tickets will be sold in the Town Hall Saturday evening, Sept. 26, at 7 o'clock. Doors will be open early, that there may be no crowding for position. No person will be allowed to purchase more than three reserved-seat tickets, unless more be required for his family, in which case the limit will be five. Single admission tickets 25 cents. Doors open at 7:15; lectures begin at 7:45. At the concert the doors will be closed during the performance of the opening numbers.

The Electric Railway.

That long looked for "first" trip on the electric railway was made from Lawrence to Andover last Friday night at about 10 o'clock, and it proved a successful trip.

To be sure it was somewhat of an "electric light car" in appearance, as one man called it, as the track was quite dirty and made the sparks fly, causing quite an illumination, but some sweeping and shovelling in a few places cleared the track and the return trip was made in excellent time. Several of the constructing party, newspaper men, and one or two other Lawrence gentlemen accompanied Supt. Morton on the trip. As the car entered Andover it was greeted enthusiastically by Matthew Kelley's family, and at the residence of Jos. W. Smith it was stopped and that gentleman invited to ride. Mr. Smith has the honor to be the first Andover passenger.

Saturday afternoon the cars began to run regularly and during the rest of the day and Sunday, crowds upon crowds journeyed between Andover and her new ally over the Merrimack. Lawrenceans seemed to be in the lead in their desire to enter into the "promised land," and the street about the Lawrence station all day Sunday reminded one of the crowd of Oklahoma "boomers" waiting to go in and possess the land. The scene about Andover Square where the cars stopped was but a little less animated, but Lawrence faces dominated.

Many of the travellers rode back in the car which brought them, but many others strolled over the town. All were orderly, and there was no display of rowdiness. Their impressions of Andover found many kinds of expression, perhaps those of most of them being well expressed by one woman who alighted in the dust of Elm Square, and, with searching eyes, exclaimed, "Where's the country?" Probably she expected to land in a corn field with a hedge of blackberry vines around it. Vain hope!

It was estimated that the Sunday crowd of travellers numbered about 6000.

The cars carried large crowds Tuesday and Wednesday, and were much liked.

The general comment as to the little noise made by the cars is explained by Supt. Morton to be due to the excellent gearing, which is known as the "Rea System," and which is a great improvement over the most prevalent one, the Thomson-Houston.

One enthusiast, who had stood upon his first ride, got into a car the next day and deposited a quarter with the conductor saying "That is to hold this seat until I have ridden its value" and so rode over the route five times.

Town Meeting.

The special town meeting Monday night was pretty well attended, about two hundred citizens being present, and the different articles called for their consideration. Town Clerk Putnam called the meeting to order and read the call. The ballot for moderator resulted in the unanimous choice of Geo. H. Poor, Esq.

Article 2 in regard to street lighting was then taken up and the different phases of the question were the cause of quite a lively discussion. M. A. Clement of the street lighting committee stated that they were unable to make a contract with the electric company according to the vote of the town at the annual meeting, and hence some action had to be taken. Treasurer Geo. W. Foster of the Andover Electric Co., then submitted the following propositions for lighting the public streets and highways of the town of Andover with electricity for a term of five years:

To furnish thirty-one (31) arc lamps of nominal 1200 c.p. and fifty-six (56) incandescent lamps of nominal 25 c.p., every dark hour of the year from one half-hour after sunset until 12:30 o'clock at night for the sum of thirty-five hundred ($3500) dollars. To furnish additional lights for the same number of hours during the continuance of this contract at the following rates, viz: Seventy ($70) dollars per year for arc lamps and sixteen ($16) dollars per year for incandescent lamps. Second: To furnish (31) arc lamps and fifty-six (56) incandescent lamps of the candle power above mentioned, during every dark hour of the year from one half-hour after sunset until one hour before sunrise in the morning, for the sum of forty-five hundred ($4500) dollars. Additional lights at same rates as above.

Third: All care, maintenance, etc., in connection with the said lamps to be paid by the Andover Electric Company. F. G. Haynes of Ballardvale at once moved the adoption of the second proposition, and here the earnest discussion began. Rev. Varum Lincoln said he did not see the necessity of lighting all night and Warren E. Draper had the same opinion, and spoke at length on the need of changing the positions of several of the lights.

John L. Smith also believed that there might be a great improvement in the placing of many lights and thought that the expense of the change should be borne by the Electric Co. Several other gentlemen spoke on the question, all of which resulted in the submission of three substitute propositions as follows:

2d: To continue the existing system of lighting under the terms of the former contract.

3rd: To authorize the Selectmen and street lighting committee to make a contract with any person or corporation for all night lighting for not exceeding three years.

After more discussion it was voted to accept the third substitute and that the sum of forty-five hundred dollars be appropriated for street lighting, and the Selectmen and street lighting committee be authorized to contract with any person or corporation for lighting the streets for a term of years not exceeding three years. This was practically the same as a motion made by John L. Smith.

Article 3 was quickly settled, explanatory remarks being made by Rev. F. W. Greene, chairman of the School Committee, and it was then voted that the sum of fourteen hundred and fifty dollars be appropriated for payment of the expense of improving the ventilation of the Central Grammar and South Centre school-houses.

Article 4 also went through without much debate. John L. Smith thought that the sum should be $4000, and Superintendent of streets Lovejoy made a statement of what he had done the past season. He said: I have put 2800 loads of stone in Andover, 583 loads in Ballardvale, 249 loads on River road. I have made 5 miles 87 rods of gravel roads, 1 mile 226 rods of broken stone roads; have graded 247 rods of sidewalk; have made 66 rods of new sidewalk; put up 28 rods of railing. Have made over 38 culverts, cut over five miles of bushes, cleared the gutters on Essex, School, Morton, Central, Park, High, Elm and Florence Sts. These broken stones have been put on Central, Cuba, Marland, Essex, Brook, High, Chestnut Streets, and Pumphrey Avenue. Have built one catch basin, and laid 230 feet of pipe.

It was finally voted that two thousand dollars be appropriated for highways and bridges. Under article 5 it was unanimously voted that to raise and provide the money appropriated at this meeting, the treasurer is hereby authorized with the approval of the Selectmen, to borrow a sum or sums not exceeding forty-four hundred dollars, on one year's interest not exceeding four per centum per annum, and give the notes of the town therefor, which notes shall be signed by the treasurer in the name and behalf of the town, and be countersigned by the Selectmen. At nine o'clock the meeting dissolved.

Fell under an Electric Car.

A painful accident happened near the turn-out just this side of Phillips Hill, last night about 8 o'clock. Joseph Dalton, a son of Mrs. Dalton of Frye Village was riding to Andover on an electric car, which was somewhat crowded with passengers. Dalton was standing on the platform and when the car reached the turn-out, lost his hold and fell, the car running over his left leg. He was removed to the City Hospital in Lawrence, where the leg was amputated below the knee by Dr. Howe.

Accident.

Daniel Sheehan, an employe of our well known coal dealer John Cornell, was the victim of a severe accident Wednesday afternoon. He had just hitched a pair of horses to a heavy coal cart, when they became frightened at something and started on the run around the town house. Sheehan, who was climbing to his seat by means of the hub of the wheel, was thrown down between the horses and dragged for a considerable distance. At the corner of Main St. and Post Office avenue, the team came into collision with the stone post, and the cross bar and whiffletree were broken. The horses were then stopped and unhitched. Sheehan was badly used up from his perilous ride. There was a large gash in his arm in which Dr. Abbott had to take sixteen stitches, also one on the head requiring several stitches, besides other bruises and probably some internal injuries. Mr. Gleason, clerk at Mr. Cornell's, procured a wagon and carried the suffering man to his home on Pearson St.

Democrats Choose Delegates.

The Democrats held their Caucus last Friday night in the Town Hall, and it was well attended. Marcus Morton called the meeting to order and was chosen permanent chairman with John F. McGuinness as secretary. A committee consisting of J. W. Higgins, W. G. Goldsmith, and J. J. Sweeney was appointed to retire and bring in a list of delegates for the several conventions. Their report, which was accepted, was as follows:

State—Jos. M. Bradley, S. B. Locke, Marcus Morton, William G. Goldsmith. County—Charles W. Thwing, Winslow Goodwin, W. P. Regan, James Nolan. Councillor—Charles S. Parker, W. A. Duley, E. E. Trefry, J. F. Scott. Senatorial—Jos. W. Higgins, John J. Sweeney, J. F. McGuinness, C. A. Sullivan.

Register of Deeds—P. J. Scott, M. T. Welch, P. J. Hannon, M. O'Shea. Congressional—To choose delegates to the national convention, J. M. Bradley, J. W. Higgins, J. S. Stark, H. J. Canfield.

The question of a town committee called out considerable discussion, but it was voted that the committee should consist of seven instead of five and should serve until Jan. 1, 1893. The following were elected: Marcus Morton, Jos. M. Bradley, J. W. Higgins, J. J. Sweeney, E. E. Trefry, P. J. Scott, William Froesch. After the reading of communications from the State committee, the meeting dissolved.

Joy of the Children.

Is the elegant assortment and perfect fitting stylish clothing shown by W. H. Gile & Co. every season. Their business is on the increase and by pleasing the boys they will stand by them when they are men. They aim to make their store attractive by their low prices and courteous treatment. The black Cheviots for young men in single and double breasted straight cut, at $12, $15, $18 and $20 are beauties. Their nobby brown and yellow suits are the proper thing for nobby wear.

Abbott Village.

D. F. Bruce and G. Christie played at Longwood on Wednesday in the game between the B. A. A. and a picked eleven. The game resulted in a victory for the B. A. A. by 20 runs. The Globe characterizes it as the closest game of the season.

The Mystics of Medford play their return game with the home team tomorrow. The visitors are bringing a strong eleven and a good game may be expected. The following will represent Andover: Capt. Bruce, Coates, Smith, Christie, Low, Pearson, White, Porter and Saunders. Play commences at 1:30.

The cup games this season have been productive of some good cricket and some poor if the games with the Merrimacks are taken into consideration. The series is a tie and the curious thing is that while Andover has beaten the Albions twice, the home team has been unable to defeat the Merrimacks, who have succeeded twice to the Albions. A new series will have to be played and if Andover plays her usual cricket the cup will find a resting place in Andover.

The Andover second eleven will play the Albion second cricket team at Lawrence to-morrow afternoon.

The final game in the present cup series, which was played on the home grounds last Saturday with the Albions, resulted in a win for the home team, but only by 17 runs. It was a bowling contest from start to finish, McGlynn doing phenomenal work. His record of 8 wickets for 7 runs stands unequalled. The Albions who batted first only scored 21 runs and an easy victory for the home team seemed certain. Disappointment was the result as only 33 runs were totalled, of which Christie had a well played 15 (not out). The others seemed fairly out of batting. Batty did the best bowling for the visitors. The fielding on both sides was excellent. The scores:

Resolutions.

Whereas it has pleased our Heavenly Father to remove from us in the prime of young manhood, our brother, John F. Quigley

Resolved, that Andover Lodge 310 of the Progressive Benefit Order, extends to the family so bereft of son and brother, its heartfelt sympathy for them in their sorrow.

Resolved, that in the death of our brother, we have lost one who was noted for his generosity and readiness to give a helping hand, was an honor to our order.

Resolved, that his diligence in his duties, his good habits, and excellent judgment made him respected by all who were associated with him in any way.

Resolved, that these resolutions be spread upon the records of the Lodge and published in the local papers and a copy sent to the family of the deceased.

BALLARDVALE.

The Craighead & Kintz Co. had quite a pretty display of their goods at the Essex County Fair at Lawrence. The exhibit was gotten up at short notice, was not a good representation of their manufactures, nevertheless it came in for a large share of attention from the visitors. The New Daylight lamps received much praise and a sudden demand has been created in Lawrence for them.

J. S. Stark has been spoken of as the Democratic candidate for representative among his friends here in the village, and would make a good showing. The choice of the Republicans for this position seems to centre on Chas. Greene. Mr. Greene has had the experience, and the custom of electing the same person to two terms in the legislature would probably help him.

A progressive whist party was given by Miss Annie Clemons last evening. Four tables were filled with young people who enjoyed the occasion greatly.

Mr. John Farnham of Philadelphia, an old resident who had charge of the office of the Ballardvale Mills years ago, has been visiting at Wm. H. Haley's Stanley Farm this week.

A lady's jacket has been found. See notice in the advertising columns.

George W. Stevens has been allowed a patent on an inkstand of novel design. He has assigned the patent to the Craighead & Kintz Co.

Frederick W. Osborne has removed his family to Hyde Park where he formerly resided. Mr. Chas. Fischer will occupy the house vacated by Mr. Osborne.

Miss Maggie Day of Providence was here yesterday.

Miss Mary Hudson is working for P. J. Hannon, the Andover tailor.

Mrs. Phillip Noessel and children have returned from their Connecticut trip.

C. H. Newman, the photographer, has been taking groups and residences the past week or two. The buffers, platers, and shippers in the shop have been taken in groups in addition to others.

Water pipes are being laid from the head of Oak Street up Tewksbury Street to Walter Murray's house. Contractor Goodhue is doing the work.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Clark, of Salem, N. H., and Mrs. Rollins, of New York City, visited Charles Billington last Sunday.

The card which should not be read by the ladies is to be found in another column and refers to Mrs. R. K. Gibson's fall stock of millinery goods.

Charles Weinhold employed in the spell room of the Craighead & Kintz Co., was married yesterday in Lawrence, to a lady of that city. His fellow employees and foreman, Charles Wombwell, presented him Wednesday with a very handsome banquet lamp as a token of regard.

The death of Rev. Samuel Bowker of Reading, was briefly noticed in this paper last week, full particulars being unobtainable at that time. The cause of his death was apoplexy, of which he suffered a stroke early Wednesday morning, the 16th, and from which he died in the afternoon of the same day. His health has been very poor since leaving here, in fact diseases contracted while in the army have troubled him for years. He was born in Phippsburg, Me. in 1814 and was but a few days short of being seventy-seven years old. His education was obtained partly at Bowdoin College and the Classical School at Bangor and finished at the Bangor Theological Seminary. He graduated in 1841 and was ordained over his first pastorate at Union, Me. in 1845. He afterward had charge of several churches in Mt. Desert Island from there going to Turner, Me. His next call was to Blue Hill, Me. in 1860, from whence he went to the front as chaplain of a Maine regiment. His war experience was an eventful one and his health was shattered for life. After his return he served at Blue Hill for a time, making seven years of service at that place. He was at Wells, Me. for three years, Raymond, N. H. three years, Salem, N. H. seven years, and Dracut three years. His next pastorate was his last, was here at Ballardvale, where he preached four years at the Congregational Church, during which time the church made considerable growth, particularly among the young people. He went to Reading three years ago but has done no active work since leaving here. He married in 1848 Miss Elizabeth Eaton of Harpenell, Me., who survives him. Both have many friends in town who extend to Mrs. Bowker their sympathy at this time. The funeral was held last Saturday from his home at Reading, several from town attending.

A Card.

Thanking the Ladies of Ballardvale and vicinity for their kind patronage, in the past, they are respectfully invited to the opening of FALL and WINTER styles of Millinery, on SATURDAY, SEPT. 26, at the store of Mrs. R. K. Gibson, Andover Street, Ballard Vale.

SOME INTERESTING FACTS

REGARDING THE SUBJECT OF MARRIAGE AND DIVORCE.

SARATOGA, Sept. 24.—The devotional exercises of the Victorian conference were a success yesterday by Reverend Mary A. Sanford of Essex City, Me., after which the subject of church extension was further discussed.

Carroll D. Wright of Washington read an interesting paper on the topic of marriage and divorce. He premised that society is the result of evolution of social, moral and industrial forces. It is crude or cultured, simple or complex, according to the extent of the evolution. So it is true that society is now in a transitional state. Sometimes the social element predominates, at others the evolution of moral forces seems to be the chief aim, and again industrial and economic conditions attract the attention of thinkers. The evolutionary movement is not uniform any more than the progress of time is to age. A great moral wave appears at a certain period in the history of society, and developments are

MARYSVILLE, Mo., Sept. 24.—Ex-Governor Albert F. Morehouse committed suicide at his residence yesterday. Several weeks ago he became violently prostrated while driving cattle, and has since been in a very nervous condition. At times he has been delirious and very much distressed. He was taken out for a drive by a friend Tuesday night, but some time after he was brought home and a physician called. He became quieter during the night, and yesterday morning was sleeping quietly. Two physicians, who were in another room, heard a falling noise, the governor's room, and on entering found him lying upon the floor, blood spurting from his throat. He had cut a gash in the left side of his throat about four inches long with a common pocket knife.

WAS WORTH $20,000,000.

NEWPORT, R. I., Sept. 21.—Ex-Congressman Scott of Pennsylvania died here Saturday night. His sickness took a turn in the form of throat trouble, but it was not considered serious, and reassuring bulletins were issued during the day. Saturday night there was a serious turn for the worse. Dr. Pepper, who was not expected for several days, returned here in answer to an urgent message, and decided to remain at the patient's bedside all night. He could not hold out any hope from the time of his arrival.

USE OF THE BIBLE

Prohibited in Washington Public Schools, According to the Constitution.

TACOMA, Wash., Sept. 22.—Attorney General Jones has just completed, for the purpose of mailing to the state superintendent of public instruction, an exhaustive opinion on the constitutionality of Bible reading in the public schools. The opinion was called out by a note of inquiry from the state superintendent. Attorney General Jones finds that the Bible cannot be read in the public schools without violating certain provisions of the state constitution, and says that from an examination of the provisions on the subject of religion found in the United States constitution and in the constitutions of several states, that the people of this country declare with unanimity against the union of religion with government, and that the first congress declared that congress should make no law respecting the establishment of religion or prohibiting a free exercise thereof.

He quotes Justice Lyon, who declares that the reading of the Bible in the schools is a sectarian instruction and that the pupils of ordinary intelligence are instructed thereby in sectarian doctrines. In conclusion, he says that Bible reading is strictly a religious exercise within the meaning of the constitution, providing that no public money or property shall be appropriated for religious worship or instruction.

A MYSTERIOUS PAYMENT

Of $10,000 to a National Bank to Repay Money Stolen in 1885.

BOSTON, Sept. 18.—The State National bank has a peculiar case on its hands, which looks much like the "late-repentance-better-than-no-repentance-at-all" action of a wrong-doer. On Sept. 15, B. L. M. Tower, an attorney for parties unknown, called upon Honorable S. M. Alrich, president of this bank, and paid him $10,000 as a debt, with all interest due upon it, to the bank.

Mr. Tower was engaged in this matter by a person who gave no further explanation than that a man upon his death-bed directed his executors to make such payment to the bank.

Under these circumstances the bank officials naturally began an examination of the books to trace, if possible, the payer of the mysterious debt. The only clue has been found in the accounts for November, 1885, when a bar containing $9000 in gold was taken from the teller's desk while his back was turned. Gold at that time was at 147. Compound interest figured on the amount stolen at that valuation would bring principal and interest to the amount paid the bank on Tuesday last.

A "Spotter" Spotted.

LACONIA, N. H., Sept. 23.—Frank Conlin of Boston, who has been here "spotting" the liquor saloons in the interest of the local temperance league, and was to receive $500 for his evidence before the grand jury here, at a conference of the liquor sellers offered to leave town for good. He was immediately arrested on a charge of blackmail, and his case will be given before the grand jury. As yet he has been unable to secure bail.

Won't Support Flower.

For the welfare of the state, and in the interest of the Democratic party, to me my duty appears clear, which is, to oppose the election of the nominees of the Saratoga convention to such extent as may be within my power, and in such manner as may seem best to accomplish that purpose.

Scripture Ending of a Quarrel.

CHICOPEE FALLS, Mass., Sept. 18.—John P. Shea was shot by Marshall Bates in a quarrel started in connection with the wife of Fred Bates, brother of the assailant. Shea was wounded in the thigh and was removed to the Springfield hospital, where it is feared that it may be necessary to amputate the limb. The weapon used was a .25-caliber Stevens rifle. Bates was released under $1500 bonds.

THE OBSERVATORY.

Massachusetts Schools.

The census report gives fresh proof that "nothing can be like figures." It shows that the population of Massachusetts has increased 25.57 per cent in ten years, while the public school enrollment has increased but 17.3 per cent, from which it is easily argued that the public school increase is falling behind the gain in population. Consequently the conclusion is inevitable that the public schools are losing in popularity.

What are the real facts? The increase in the number of children of school age—five to fifteen—is but 18.8 per cent, while the increase in enrollment of children of those ages is 16 per cent. The slight difference is accounted for on the ground that the private kindergartens claim many of the children of five years, and the sentiment is decidedly against sending children to school so early. The test years are now from eight to fourteen, and the statistics show that the increase of enrollment between these years is 27 per cent, which is higher than the gain in population. The fact is incontestable, that in the actual school years the increased enrollment in the public schools is ahead of the increase of population; and the only thing which the census figures show is that children do not go to school so early, which is a matter for public rejoicing. The interest and confidence in the public schools was never so great as at present, as these facts prove.—Journal of Education.

How Queen Victoria Travels.

Many times I have seen items in the American papers which said that the Queen of England traveled very plainly; that her private carriage was no better than any other first-class English carriage. I wish right here to say that these reports are based upon no authentic evidence. An official of the Midland Road took me into the Queen's carriage as it stood in St. Pancras station, and I must say it is as fine as any Pullman car ever built—and that is saying a good deal. The walls of the saloon [are of satin-wood highly polished. The cushions are of white silk embroidered in gold thread. A garter containing her motto, "Honi soit qui mal y pense," surrounds her initials, V. R. Her large chair, and it takes a large one, too, is at the back of the carriage and faces the engine. At her hand is a silver plate in which are electric annunciators, pressing which she can call her different attendants who occupy another compartment. Three other easy chairs are in her compartment, besides a satin-wood table about six feet long and three feet wide, upon which were piled the latest English, French, German and American periodicals. The carpet is of velvet, and is in a good state of preservation, considering it has been in use over fifteen years. The curtains at the windows and a portiere are hung on silver poles. The door handles are solid silver, and the whole saloon has the appearance of solid luxury. Victoria, herself, selected the furnishings, which are said to pattern after the white drawing-room at Windsor Castle. The whole saloon with fittings cost between $30,000 and $35,000. The carriage is about half the length of an ordinary American railroad car. At first sight the carriage impressed me as being gaudy, but this idea wore away in a moment.

The railway official informed me that the Queen paid about $1.90 per mile for traveling, besides first-class fares for every one in her party. As the official from whom I received my information was in a position to know, this explodes other reports that the Queen and her suite always travel free.—Frank Leslie's Weekly.

THOROUGHWORT TEA.

Mr. Simmons' Dilemma. A Sunday for Malignant Diphtheria.

John Simmons' wife was away from home on a visit, and he had been reading the evening paper. "Well, well," he said to himself, as he turned it down, "there seems to be an alarming prevalence of diphtheria. Two children on this street died last night, and my throat is very sore. I believe it is worse since supper time."

"I don't see how Alice could leave home at this horrid season," he went on. "I shall probably die of the grip, or diphtheria, or pneumonia while she is away. Oh, she will perish!"

Distress called him out, however, though the weather was bad, and about 10 o'clock he returned laden with parcels, including beefsteak for breakfast, a package of thoroughwort tea, a paper of leather shoe lacings and sundry other articles.

On his way he passed the house of his neighbor, and as he saw the crabs hanging from the doorbell a sharp pain in the back, and something like a chill, admonished him anew of his own condition.

On getting home he repaired to the kitchen. The faithful Bridget had left a kettle of boiling water on the stove, and he made haste to get a dish of thoroughwort tea, of which he drank liberally and then went to bed.

In the morning he was perfectly well. As he sat down to his breakfast he said:

"Bridget, there's nothing like thoroughwort tea for a bad cold. I took a bowlful last night, and here I am as good as new."

"Well, then," said Bridget, "you drank a bowl of tea that would kill a haythorn."

"Why, of course," he replied, "it wasn't quite as sweet as a sugar pellet."

"Will ye please come down after breakfast and take the rest of it, or put it out of the way?" said the girl, as she shut the door.

When he had finished his breakfast and coffee, therefore, he went down into the kitchen. The tin pail in which he had steeped the thoroughwort stood on the table, and certainly its contents did look remarkable.

"That's not thoroughwort," exclaimed Mr. Simmons.

"Then what else is it?" said Bridget.

"Where are the packages I bought?" asked he, after another look at the black, slimy mess.

Bridget opened the closet and handed him three or four parcels, with a manner indicative of some offense.

The first one was the package of thoroughwort.

"Where are the shoe-lacings?" said Mr. Simmons.

"Boiled tea, is it?" said Bridget, with logical indirectness; "an I thought him was snakes or worms. An ye drank that tea, an it cured yer diphtheria!"

It was indeed so. Struggling tea had proved itself a sovereign remedy.

Mr. Simmons threw the stuff out of doors.

"If Mrs. Simmons remains away much longer," said he, "I shall probably poison myself some night. I wouldn't speak of it, Bridget."

It is possible that Bridget never did speak of it, but somehow the story got about.

The Unreality of the Realists.

The discussion of the advisability of more frankness in our fiction is very familiar, and any one would be tempted in hoping to throw any new light on it, no doubt. The paleness of the said fiction has been acknowledged on all hands, defended by some and deplored by others in most thoroughgoing fashion. But I must say I think the practice of the revolutionists—and though they are not so numerous by any means as their apologists and sympathizers they are respectably numerous, when you consider the velocities of many a short story as well as the bravura of the emancipated novelettes and novels—is considerably more frank than the theoretical discussion hitherto. And in this way. The argument for greater frankness is summed up in the declaration that it is possible to neglect in literature any important side of life. Yet the practice of our writers of fiction who have either frankly shown the ugly side of life, or have shown a coy disposition to do so on further encouragement, has been to neglect life entirely.—Scraper's.

Realism Made of Gold.

The famous sculptured body trait of the blackbird being taken from the full corn and some such, which are not uncommonly sold for gold or silver and sold in the shops. The hard endocarp of Amorpha seeds, and the heads of another species are largely exported from the western and sold to Arabia, Persia and India for ornaments of all kinds, necklaces, bracelets and rosaries or shapies.

The five grooved and elegantly tubercled nuts of E. salicaria are worn as a necklace by the followers of Biva in order to gain his graces and a passport to heaven. They are also supposed to preserve the health. Considerable importance is attached to the number of facets on the seeds. They are commonly known as Brahmin's beads. Those of Monocera tuberculata are used for a like purpose in Travancore.—Chambers' Journal.

HE TOOK HIS OWN LIFE.

BALMACEDA, EX-PRESIDENT OF CHILI, SHOTS HIMSELF.

Had No Hope of Escape and Committed Suicide Rather than to be Captured. Suicide With a Delight.

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—The Herald has a special yesterday from Valparaiso, dated Saturday, containing the following:

Ex-President Balmaceda of Chili shot himself through the temple in his room at the Argentine legation in Santiago at 8:30 a. m. today. The story became known here this afternoon and created the greatest excitement.

Early in the day the city was brilliantly illuminated, and on every hand was heard the sounds of rejoicing. It seems Balmaceda left Santiago on Aug. 20 last in the hope of making his escape from Chili but seeing that every avenue of retreat was cut off he returned here Sept. 2 and went direct to the Argentine legation. No one, with the exception of the minister of the Argentine Republic and one other man, who was devoted to the unfortunate ex-president's cause, was permitted to talk to or even see him. All the different schemes of flight were considered by the hanged ex-president.

Some friends went to the theater last night. When he returned to the legation he had a long conversation with Balmaceda. He said he was all about the advantages of going himself up to the place. Balmaceda and Senor Urriburu went to bed at midnight. Senor Urriburu, about 8 a. m. today, heard a pistol shot in the bedroom that had been assigned to Balmaceda. She married her husband. Upon breaking in the door of Balmaceda's room it was found that

He Had Shot Himself.

The body was still warm. There was a wound in the temple. The body was undressed and lay on the bed.

Gradually the news spread all over Santiago. The excitement created is indescribable. Great crowds of terribly excited people gathered all around the Argentine legation. They cheered and they howled and went into a frenzy over the death of their chief enemy. Above all the disorderly shouts were heard cries congratulating the unfortunate Balmaceda that in taking his own life he had escaped a worse fate.

Balmaceda left a letter to his mother, Adela, stating to the Herald: "He says in the letter:

I acted all during the past eight months with a firm conviction that I was right. I had no one in the army in whom I could place any trust. My generals were false to me. They lied all through the war. My orders were obeyed. I believe that the battle of Concon would have resulted in a decisive victory over the enemy."

My heart all through this trouble has been with Chili.

I sought to reconquer my country from foreign domination.

I tried to make her the first republic in America.

My enemies say that I was cruel. Circumstances compelled me to sanction certain acts, but many had deeds that have been attributed to my orders were never known by me until they had been committed.

Until the final battle of Placilla I had strong hopes of triumphing over my foes. Victory was assured by my generals, Alvear and Barboza and Vial.

They asked, I now know those for me because of the money that was to be gotten out of me.

All the money that I have in my possession is $2500. My wife gave it to me on the night of Aug. 2.

Your minister, Patrick Egan, many times offered me good advice. He urged me to make peace with those opposed to me, and to retire from Chili. I did not heed his wise advice for I thought he was under the influence of the junta's orders, who were then refusing to accept the American legation. All through the trouble my closest advisers were always opposed to any overtures for peace.

Another letter was found addressed to Senor Urriburu. Balmaceda's body has been removed to the general cemetery. It was accompanied by the members of the family and friends. The widow of the dead ex-president was informed of his tragic ending by her brother, Domingo Torro.

There is a guard stationed at the cemetery.

NEW WEATHER SIGNALS.

Large Number of Display Stations to be Established in New England.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Sept. 24.—The United States weather bureau has recently authorized the establishment of a large number of weather signal display stations in New England for the purpose of displaying the daily weather forecasts and cold-wave warnings by means of signal flags.

The forecasts are telegraphed at government expense to any section where a set of flags will be procured and regularly displayed for the benefit of the public. This offer has been taken advantage of in many places, but there are other places in New England where the flags cannot be displayed to great advantage, and to properly cover these regions a system of whistle signals should be established. The forecasts and cold-wave warnings will be telegraphed to a limited number of mills, foundries, etc., in the agricultural sections, whose officers will arrange to give the warning signals at some stated hour in the day. Due notice should be given to the surrounding community through the press and otherwise that the steam whistles at a certain place will sound the signals to indicate the probable weather and temperature for the ensuing twenty-four hours.

EXPLANATION OF SIGNALS.

One long blast indicates fair weather. Two long blasts indicate rain or snow. Three long blasts indicate local rains. One short blast indicates lower temperature. Two short blasts indicate higher temperature. Three short blasts indicate cold wave.

Different combinations can easily be made, a full explanation of which will be sent when the stations are established. It is sufficient to say that the warning signals attract attention, will be blast of from fifteen to twenty seconds duration. After this warning signal, has been sounded, long blasts (of from four to six seconds duration) refer to weather, and short blasts (of from one to three seconds duration) refer to temperature: those for weather to be sounded first. By repeating each combination a few times, possibilities of error in reading the forecasts will be avoided. All applications for the forecasts should be sent to the director, New England Meteorological society, Cambridge, Mass. Correspondence is requested.

WEATHER-CROP BULLETIN.

Results of Observations by the New England Meteorological Society.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Sept. 23.—Generally fair, warm weather, with plenty of sunshine, has prevailed throughout New England during the past seven days. Very little rain has fallen in any locality, and in the upper Connecticut valley none at all. The mean temperature was above the normal and the range was quite strong. An unusually high degree of heat was experienced on the 18th, while light frosts were reported from Vermont on the morning of the 19th. No damage was done. The amount of sunshine was considerably above the normal. All crops have ripened rapidly, and harvesting has been lively. Corn cutting is well under way in the three southern states and is completed in the most favorable sections. In the extreme north some cutting is being done, and in the northern states, but the majority of observers report that at least another week is needed to fully ripen the crop.

The picking of corn for canning purposes in western Maine is nearly completed, and a good crop in both quantity and quality has been secured. Many potatoes are yet in the ground, and with few exceptions are turning out as well as earlier in the season. The rot is certainly not increasing, and in many cases is on the decrease. The tobacco is all secured and is curing nicely. Grapes are ripening fairly well, and are a good crop in most places. The cranberry crop is reported splendid, with the harvest going on with continued vigor. Apples are falling off badly in the Merrimack valley.

From Epistolae to Universalist.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 24.—Reverend Howard Macquary, under suspension for heresy, has given up the fight and withdrawn from the Episcopal church. The reasons for his withdrawal are to the effect that he cannot conscientiously continue in the church and hold his present views. Mr. Macquary has entered the Universalist church. His first charge will be at Saginaw, Mich.

Smith, for the assault of two boys, Samuel Church and Daniel Smith, who were loitering near the door yard. The case was called Tuesday morning before Judge Stone. Evidence showing that the assaults were committed was given by Daniel Smith, Samuel Church, Edward Hall, Hollis Pinkham and officer Smith.
